DETAILED ACTION

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

- (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.
- 2. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:
 - 1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
 - 2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
 - 3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
 - 4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.
- 3. Claims 1-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Schramm et al.

Schramm et al. disclose the invention substantially as claimed.

Schramm et al. teach a color composition which is used in an aqueous containing beverage or dessert. The color composition is water soluble even when using water insoluble lakes. [Note Column 1, lines 21-46] Specifically, Schramm et al. teach making color blends, which includes using FD&C Red No.2, FD&C Red No.3, FD&C Yellow No. 6, etc. The color blends can further includes water soluble dyes such as beet juice, beet powder, calcium carbonate, carbon black, carmine, carminic acids, calcium carbonates, carrot oil, cochineal, grape skin extract, paprika, curcumin, xanthophylls, oleoresins, riboflavin, saffron, turmeric, curcumin. Schramm teaches that all of the FD&C colors are water soluble in their acid form and all of the acid forms dissolve at a low pH with the exception of Red No. 3 which is soluble at higher pH's. The ratio of acid to color can be adjusted to provide proper solubility of the insoluble lakes. It has been found that most the lakes are soluble at a pH of 6 or below and the pH of the food products containing an acid will usually be below 3. Schramm et al. further that that insoluble lakes can be blended to provide shades such as cherry, lime, orange, lemon-lime, and other types of colors and teaches that blending can be carried out within the skill of the art to obtain a desired color for a given product. The blended colors are designed so that the colors do not separate out or flash during storage. Schramm et al. further teach that by knowing the amount of insoluble lakes originally added and the amount of soluble dyes used for adjustment the insoluble lakes and soluble dyes can be mixed in a predetermined ratio and used as a mixture.[Note Column 4, lines 1-73]

Although, Schramm et al. does not specifically teach providing a orange food coloring composition which consists essentially of yellow dye and red dye in the specific ratios as claimed by applicant, Schramm et al. does teach that mixing colors to make blended colors in particular ratios which provides best results is well within the purview of the ordinary artisan and teaches that solubility, pH, type of beverage or food application, shelf life, flashing are parameters which are to be considered when mixing FD&C food dyes and other dyes for providing best results and colors in foods or beverages thus rendering the invention as a whole obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made. With respect to applicant's "low staining" recitation, it is believed that the blended colors taught in Schramm would provide a low staining blended food coloring composition especially since applicant has not claimed that materials such as surfactant or gallotannin or a stain inhibiting component with the food color composition.

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Billington teach an orange coloring material "Orange AB" for coloring foods and cosmetics. Basa et al. teach colorants for lipid based edible compositions and teach ratios and proportions for making a caramel colored composition. Grillo et al. teach a method of coating an edible substrate with sugar/syrup using a dry color concentrate. Kirksey et al. teach a color and shelf stable beverage composition comprising FD&C dyes and tea extract.
